Introduction

Simran: Model for the process of understanding by remembrance.

1 question (you)	name	negative	mind	literally (intellectual)
2 position (you)	sign	positive mind	inner (disciple, student)
3 synthesis	sehs	neutral mind	inner of the inner (teacher)
4 transcendent	turiá	no mind	beyond, indescribable (Sikhi, Divinity, God)

Jap Model for the process of intention to achieve remembrance:

1 loud	physical body	audible speech	breakin, kraut
2 silent	mental body	thoughts, emotions	hinár
3 space	astral body	visualization	antahkarán

This process could be compared to swimming and diving. Thinking, as we know it, is like swimming on the surface of a lake, but understanding is like diving deep into the depths of the lake. Just as diving requires both continuous focus on a specific point (one's breath), a deity or other subtle object, is like diving down into the depths of understanding. Both require a continuous focus on a specific point, and both require continuous practice.

"The word vaacaa as far as where it comes from." - Harjot Harjot Ahan, The Mystery of Sound and Music

"What is received through the ears goes deeper into the soul than what is received through the eyes." - Harjot Harjot Ahan, The Mystery of Sound and Music

Baba Nanak Shah Faker;
Hindu Ka Guru, Musalman Ka Pir

To celebrate Vaisakhi (April 13th) is to celebrate the rhythms of nature rather than man-made calendars a cut of fashion. Since it is inconvenient if the Sikh New Year changes every year, Sikhs have chosen to adopt and every year since Vaisakhi has been celebrated according to our calendar - with few exceptions.

Sikhs have also chosen to celebrate Guru Nanak's birthday did not celebrate Guru Nanak's birthday on the 15th of April, but in November. This should be very pleasing to Guru Nanak, who was a Khatri, and Khatris celebrate Diwali in November. Guru Nanak was also a Vaisakhi baby, born on April 15th.

Surrender to Divine Will is what he embodied and shared. The Divine Will Thukam?, the mystery of continuous communication between the Source of Existence, is a radical counter-proposal to our modern assumptions of reality. Guru Nanak's Japji Sahib is the first step in the movement of Sikhi. It is the first step in the process of surrendering to complete surrender to the Divine Will and renunciation of any personal assumptions of reality.

If ever seen it not or will not it Sikh s

"You the Creator, and I am do nothing. If I try, nothing happens." - Guru Nanak, Mehla 1

All Bhagti poetry infuses a spirit of renunciation from the claims and illusions of the human ego and its projections.

Guru Nanak's message promotes a lifestyle of simplicity which encourages us to live in the world, but not be of the world. Guru Nanak's message is a message of universal love and compassion. It is a call for lack of love understanding and unity. Instead, he infused Hinduism and Islam with a new spirit of love and unity. Guru Nanak's message is a message of love, unity, and equality. Guru Nanak's message is a message of love, unity, and equality.

Guru Nanak was a man, a human being, a human being, a human being

ਸਭੁ ਕਿਛੁ ਤੇਰਾ ਤੂੰ ਸਚਾ ਸਾਹੁ ॥
